

JUROR'S STATEMENT:

The works displayed at Boca Raton Artist Guild exhibition at FAU were insightful and profound. A great verity of methods and ideas make it very interesting and diverse show. The wide range of the work touched on movements of the last 100 plus years. This is very acceptable and widely used in contemporary art of the day. Pablo Picasso (good artists copy; great artists steal) could never have painted his breakthrough works of the 1900s without recourse to African sculpture.

The main purpose of any artwork is what it communicates. I tried to base my chooses, for the award winners, on creativity, originality and mastery of material. It was not an easy job.

There are many winners that did not get the special recognition. That does not mean you should not rejoice in the satisfaction of showing your work.
Professor John Foster, Juror
